

So, what's this website all about?

Basically, it's a collection of kinetic & interactive typography projects I put together. You know how sometimes a picture isn't enough? I wanted to re-imagine & explore deeper into my ideas and feelings - things like identity, failure, memory, or even just the vibe of a movie - but make them interactive.

It's about taking work (the ideas) I already created and bringing them to life visually (the images), but with a twist: you get to play around with them. Whether you're moving your mouse, clicking or dragging, or even typing, your actions change what you see on the screen.

Each project takes a theme, often one I first explored in a static poster, and turns it into something dynamic using code (mostly p5.js). The goal is to make you feel the concept a bit more, not just look at it.

The overall design of the site - the fonts, the blue-and-pink vibe, the keyboard navigation, even the little sounds - is all meant to tie everything together into one cohesive experience.

It's my way of showing how text can be more than just text; it can be playful, emotional, and responsive. Hope you enjoy clicking around!
